Power BI view: all months (Jan–Mar)

26% of bookings leaked through cancellations and no-shows

Q1 booking outcomes (438 reservations)

Cancelled vs. no-show by month

Unfulfilled share rose 24.4% → 26.3% → 27.9%. No-shows jumped from 6 to 15, so pre-arrival payment checks or deposits are urgent.

After a January peak, March recovered on volume of nights

January

Peak: 40.9% occupancy, $15.3K revenue, 355 nights

February

Revenue −39.7% to $9.2K; nights −42.5%

March

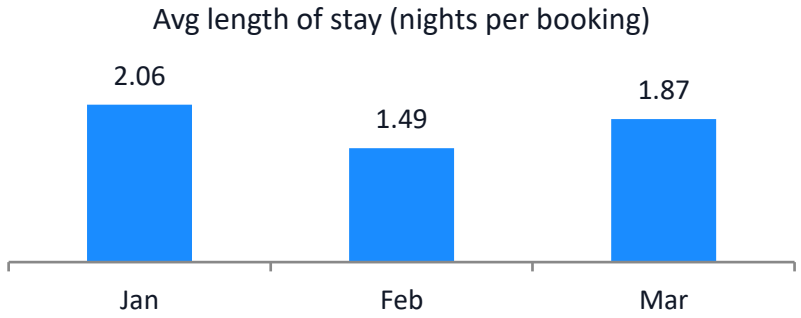

Nights +18.1%, revenue +6.8% to $9.8K

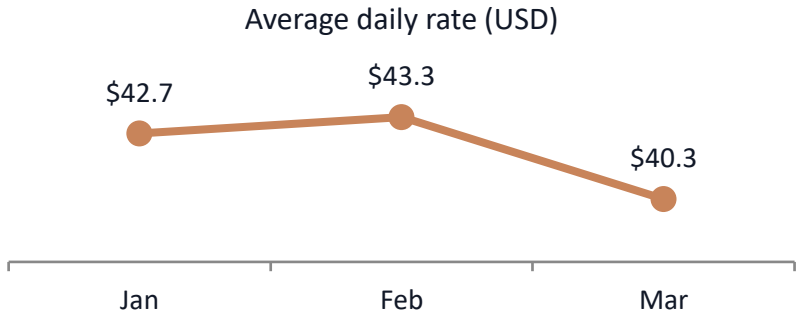

March reservations fell 5.8% (129 bookings) while nights grew, so stays got longer.

Lowering March ADR unlocked longer guest stays (+25% ALOS)

February: ADR rose to $43.3 and stays shortened to 1.49 nights per booking.

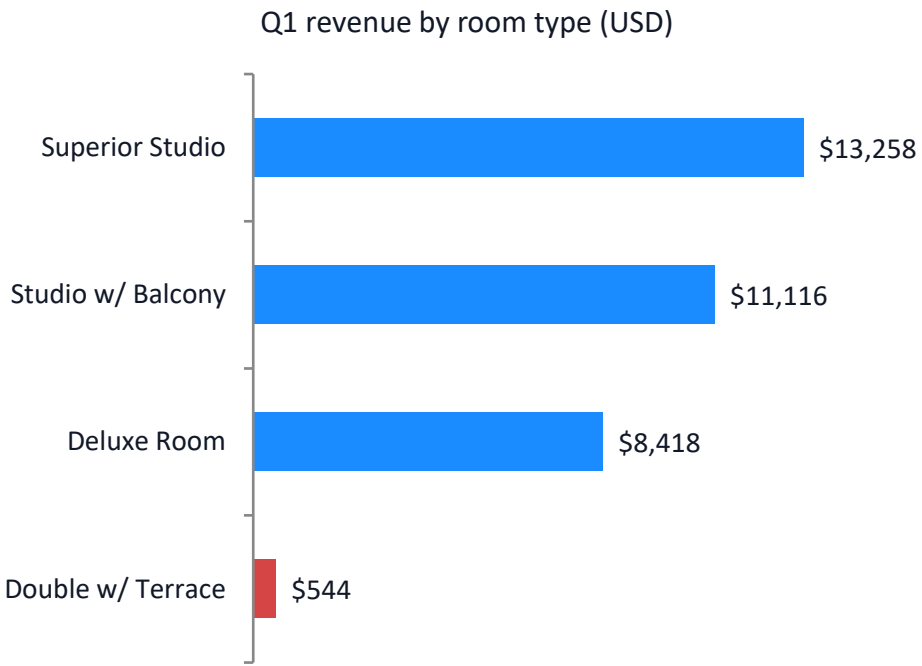

March: ADR cut 6.9% to $40.3 lifted stays to 1.87 nights per booking.

Takeaway: Booking.com guests are price sensitive. A ~$3 rate adjustment stimulated multi-night bookings and reversed the revenue decline.

Led by Room #45 ($358), #25 ($351), #35 ($255) and #55 ($246).

Stay length pays

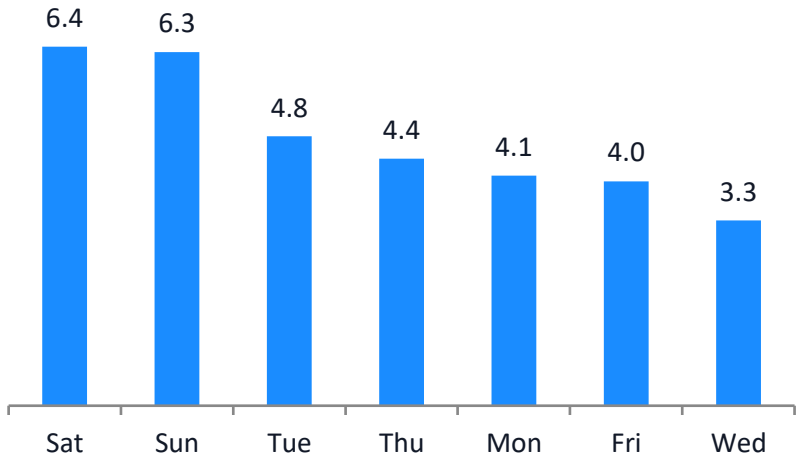

In Room #45, a 4-night stay earned $207 vs. $151 for a 1-night stay.

Weekday stays drive 70.8% of Q1 revenue

Weekday vs. weekend revenue ($K)

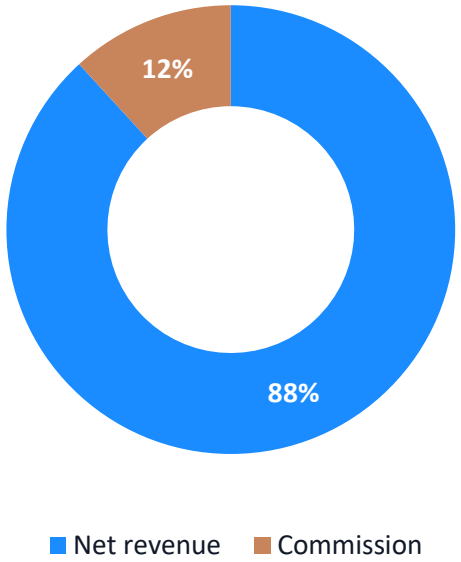

Q1 revenue by day of week ($K)

Weekend share fell from 45.7% in Jan to 17.1% in Feb and 14.8% in Mar. Best single day reached $1.1K.

88.2% of gross revenue is retained after Booking.com fees

Where each gross dollar goes

Gross total amount	$34,321.10
Booking commission paid	−$4,053.68
Net revenue retained	$30,267.42

Moving just 25% of the $4.05K commission to direct bookings (WhatsApp, website, PMS) would add over $1,000 to net profit each quarter.

Roadmap to lift Q2 occupancy from 31.7% to 50%+

1 Combat the 27.9% leakage

Require card pre-authorization or a non-refundable 1-night deposit on Booking.com.

2 Revive Double with Terrace

Re-price it or offer it as a free upgrade on 4+ night stays and weekend bundles.

3 Weekend flash campaigns

Run Thursday and Friday "Weekend Staycation" offers to lift the ~15% weekend share.

4 Length-of-stay pricing

Hold ADR near $40.0–$41.5 with "Stay 3+ nights, save 10%" to repeat March.
